

By an article in the Western Christian Advocate, we see that the Methodists of St. Louis have held several meetings to decide on their future ecclesiastical relations. One of these meetings passed a preamble and resolution, thus concluding:

"And, as those whom are hereunto sub-scribed, do most solemnly declare, that they do not identify ourselves with the 'Methodist Episcopal Church South,' as they call it; but that we will remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States of America."

The editor of the Advocate says:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Thus has been the most remarkable anti-slavery convention held yet in the United States. It numbered 1,000 delegates, it did not precisely much surpass the Buffalo convention; but that convention had no representation from the slave States. In unity of purpose, harmony of opinion, and firmness of resolution, no other convention could equal it. There were in all—no fanaticism; there are no commonalities to anti-slavery; but there was calm determination and inflexible decision, before which slavery falls. There was no spirit of party; but there was fervid eloquence in controversy. No impracticable projects, no wild schemes were urged upon the convention; but a plain, definite line of action was marked out and agreed upon, which must result, if persevered in, in the overthrow of the slave power, and of slavery itself, at no distant day."

SLAVERY AND THE BIBLE.—Should it be convincing the world that slavery is the institution of the New Testament, then will it become the true religion of mankind—and not till then?"

CANDID ADMISSION.—The Norfolk American, in "Deedham, Whig paper, June 27, very cordially says:

"The admission of John Tyler was a Whig admission. In so far as good ever did inlede for whatever of good ever his accidental presidency has occasioned. If he was not in all things the exponent of Whig principles, by becoming the exponent of Whig follies, he has done as much to bring his party to a standstill, as any man in the history of the party. He is a man to whom his wife and the divorce which the party finally decreed against him, might have been better grounded upon the actions of his previous life, than upon his vetoes of the bank and distribution act."

ETERNAL HATE.—Some unknown piece of human malignity, has addressed C. M. Clay, through the post-office, in the following language:

"You are among those without the autocrats of hell, who may think you can and curse the people of Kentucky to your infamous course. You will find it is too late for life, if you do not live up to the bosom of brave men, you are bettered, for you. The heap is ready for your neck. Your life cannot be spared. Plenty thirst for your life—are determined to have it. If it is unknown to you or your friends, it may be known, and in any day you may dream."

REVENGE.—The last mine, from the agents of Moses, Hamond & Co., principal shippers at Galena, the quantity of the current year, is not likely to be less than sixty millions of pounds. Of this quantity three-fourths are obtained east of the Mississippi. The market value of the product this year will sell at about sixteen millions and fifty thousand dollars, $25 per hundred weight, or about the average price.—American Freeman.

CUBA.—A letter dated Havana, June 14th, says: "Cuba has a great deal of rain recently, and the sugar crop is expected to be in a most promising state. Sugar is still high, and few shipments are made. The city remains quite healthy; no cases of the vomit are heard of."

The East India Company has purchased Scampore, and the town and district of Trasquebar in Tagore, from the King of Denmark, justly repurchased."

Assume from Calcutta, April 4th, that the cholera was, rasing there, the number of persons of Kentucky to your infamous course, you will find it is too late for life, if you do not live up to the bosom of brave men, you are bettered, for you. The heap is ready for your neck. Your life cannot be spared. Plenty thirst for your life—are determined to have it. If it is unknown to you or your friends, it may be known, and in any day you may dream."

Several individuals, who we presume were those who tried Mr. W. F. Reed, in the Bangor Whig & Courier, that have "misrepresented and injured" respectively the Methodist Episcopal Church and her minister."

For the present, and we entreat them to mark where we have "misrepresented" the Methodist Episcopal Church, or, unless justly repurchased."

Assume from Calcutta, April 4th, that the cholera was, rasing there, the number of persons of Kentucky to your infamous course, you will find it is too late for life, if you do not live up to the bosom of brave men, you are bettered, for you. The heap is ready for your neck. Your life cannot be spared. Plenty thirst for your life—are determined to have it. If it is unknown to you or your friends, it may be known, and in any day you may dream."

ODO FELLOWS AND FREE MASON.—The Boston Recorder says, "The Odd Fellows had a celebration in this city on Thursday last, and the Free Masons a similar one on Saturday of this week, the latter meeting at the meeting-house in Madison, on FRIDAY, the eleventh day of July next at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of settling subscriptions as persons to county officers for the year ensuing, and to transact any other business thought proper when met."

Order of Executive Committee, W. M. DINSMORE, Chairman, June 17, 1845.

LIBERTY CONVENTION.—A Convention will be held at WAYNE village, on FRIDAY, July 11, commencing at 10 o'clock, A. M. During the meeting a nomination of county officers for the approaching year will be made, and a general delegation from all parts of the county is particularly requested for the sake of the cause. Come in great numbers, and fail not to bring the ladies."

LEWIS CLARKE is expected to be present.

Order of County Committee.

LIBERTY CONVENTION.—The Liberty Party of the County of Somerset are hereby requested to meet at W.H. WATSON'S MEETING-HOUSE in Madison, on FRIDAY, the eleventh day of July next at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of settling subscriptions as persons to county officers for the year ensuing, and to transact any other business thought proper when met."

Order of Executive Committee, W. M. DINSMORE, Chairman, June 17, 1845.

LIBERTY CONVENTION.—A Convention will be held at North Penobscot, on JULY 4th, to transact such business as may be deemed necessary. It is to be the belief of the Convention that it is better to be otherwise than as it is. For the comfort of those that are in the secret, we will add, that we and all others will leave off gossipping when they will give us knowledge."

FRUSTRATED.—A plan to Murder our Gaolers, GEORGE WELD, Esq., a colored man by the name of De Bois, Esq., of New Haven, was discovered in his cell, and he was brought to the city and sentenced to the State Prison, but formed a plan to murder Mr. Wellington, and thus to effect his escape. They had provided themselves with clubs and axes for the purpose, and intended to use them to break his jail, but he had been so far disengaged, expecting to be sold, and to the slave-traders, that he did not think of it. A little child, which they were to rescue, was consumed in the flames. Eight, nine or ten in number, were taken, and two of them hung up on the spot. The others were taken to the door. The house was on fire, and those poor victims of American slavery, after having been degraded, deprived of education, of liberty, of the right to a free life, and of their right to life, their shocking master, while the air was rent with their unavailing shrieks and screams.

It is hard to conceive of barbarous savagery capable of an inhuman act. Every festivity of human life, every pleasure of childhood, at even the thought of it. And yet what are some of the fruits of that system, which is the curse of the world? Brazil and Auction, and his assonance, and his influence, have set them to justify."

What can exceed the horrors of slavery, or the impudence of its defenders?

Your respectively, G. W. CLARK. Cincinnati, June 19th, 1845.

ST. PETERSBURG AND MOSCOW.—The city of Moscow, having been built in 1812, will celebrate in 1847, the ninth century of its existence. The emperor wishes the iron railway between the two capitals of the empire to be finished by that time.

SOCIETY.—The Cincinnati Herald recently arrived at the office are especially interesting in the discussion of the question in the churches, and their opposition vehemently over the disruption of the Methodist and Baptist churches. The sin of schism and division is as great as any human sin, and no one can be more guilty of it than the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as they call it; but that we will remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States of America.

The editor of the Advocate says:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention of the Philadelphian Citizen thus ensues to consider the character and proceedings of this anti-slavery convention:

"Our brethren who remain in the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. Louis, will be passed over and supplied by the Church. Let them be free and immovable, and God will provide for them and all such."

The CINCINNATI CONVENTION.—A convention

